

Select Quotations from "Superultramodern Science and Philosophy"

By Kedar Joshi

(Creative Commons license: Attribution – Share Alike 3.0 United States)

"In reality the universe has no geometry."

"The best thing about the world is that it has a mysterious structure and the worst thing is that it has a grievous structure."

"The world is a contradiction, the universe a paradox."

"The world is truly beautiful solely in the eyes of a true philosopher."

"The world exists to let Man philosophize."

"Truth may have been found but might never be known."

"Truth is orphan without matter and matter is impotent without truth."

"How miserable a solipsist is! It is rather senseless for him to even assert his belief in solipsism, for, on the one hand, if his belief is false it is like committing intellectual suicide, and, on the other hand, if his belief is true it is an act of intellectual insanity."

"The most fundamental tragedy of my life is that the ones who I see do not exist and the one who exists I do not see."

"Religions, themselves, are (intellectual) blasphemies."

"Ask a true scientist a very profound question on his science, and he will be silent. Ask a true religious person a very simple question on his religion, and he will be frenzied."

"The worst mockery God can make of a moralist is that He compels him to be a solipsist."

"At the heart of my metaphysic there is the ultimate question and at the heart of the universe there is the ultimate questioner."

"The time has come for the greatest revolution of all times."

"The universe is a gigantic non-spatial computer."

"I am philosophical Christ; crucified on the cross of ignorance for the sake of divine vanity."

"They often say, "What's the point in astrology if you can't change your destiny?". Well, it's true that you can't change your destiny, but still it helps knowing about gravity."

"The failure of the past philosophers is largely the failure to see the self-evident."

"The history of science is the saga of nature defying common sense."

"I know what the world exists for, but I know not how it came into existence. I see the design, but not the designer. I understand the question, but not the questioner. "

"The greatest art is philosophy."

"The question is how the questioner exists."

"Most of the history is a divine work of fiction."

"It is impossible to imagine existence void of any intelligence."

"Life is too meaningful to die."

"Nature, by its very nature, is very brutal and unequal. However, Man has somehow managed to transform the nature of its brutality and inequality."

"In the world of unfathomable misery, I'm lucky to have a chance to be a solipsist."

"I have far more reasons to rather disbelieve that a man besides me suffers when he cries, yet I have far more sentiments, than those great reasons, to instead weep for his, far less likely, sufferings."

"Painful life is brutal and painless life is superficial."

"I - a philosopher - live in the cage of flesh and blood."

"Man is programmed to find the programmer."

"God would be the strangest thing to exist."

"God exists beyond the ultimate paradox."

"God speaks to Man through his destiny."

"Man is an appearance, God is a reality."

"God's greatest thirst and his greatest sin is his ultimate vanity."

"God shall be my last discovery."

"Pain is a poison, pleasure an intoxicant."

"An atheist is as religious as a theist."

"I am born to answer the ultimate question, the question about the nature of the ultimate questioner's existence."

"England...the greatest and the most glorious and beautiful land on earth."

"The worst of all superstitions may be that astrology is a superstition."

"A fundamental condition of Being is slavery. Man is the slave of God and God that of his vanity."

"The existence of God is not logically necessary, and yet, on the basis of some profound peculiar empirical order in the universe, it seems that He exists as the ultimate uncreated Being, implying a paradox, as no logically unnecessary entity can be uncreated. This paradox is the ultimate question asked by God, who is nothing but the ultimate questioner."

"The word philosophy, as distinguished from science, is misleading, for it implies that what philosophy contains is impossible to be a systematic body of knowledge and what science contains is certain or proved."

"Man is more social within than without."

"He is man whose heart is spirited and eyes are wet each moment on account of the sorrow, compassion, virtue, beauty, and nobility that decorate this world."

"I believe I have understood the most basic principle of knowledge. I believe I have uncovered the true nature of material reality. I believe I have demystified the phenomena that have stunned the greatest minds in human history. And I believe I have made a fair sense of the drama called life. But still I have a terrible feeling that I have found nothing. All of my efforts, as well as of those who ever existed before me, are simply futile. What we have been trying to understand is so profound and strange that even a very first attempt to discover its secrets is ultimately meaningless. Reason itself is as pseudo and unrealistic as space. Like space, reason is a mere form or projection of its negation. Sense itself has really no sense. And, at last, if what I have just said therefore seems to be absurd then it does not have to be as all logic and logical implications are absurd."

"In attempting to speculate the outcome of the possible race for supremacy between natural and artificial intelligence it makes sense to consider that there are basically two sorts of machines - spatial machines and non-spatial machines. The universe is physically a non-spatial machine. The artificial machines, like electronic computers, manifesting artificial intelligence are conceptually spatial machines, physically existing in non-spatial form. A human brain, manifesting natural intelligence, has both conceptually spatial as well as non-spatial components. Now, to be the real master of the game of life is to be able to manipulate the physically non-spatial universe with one's conceptually non-spatial intelligence, where the non-spatial human brain stands some chance and the spatial artificial electronic brain does not stand any."

"The real doubt is the doubt that doubts that it doubts."

"Moral certainty is intellectual immorality."

"If the universe is a non-spatial computer, a 'time machine' is a program that allows a user to have the same (ontologically non-spatial) feelings or experiences that occurred or s/he merely feels to have occurred in the past, with an in-built function to have different feelings or experiences than those of the past, and thus creating a possibility to change the past or to rewrite history in a pseudo sense."

"Christianity would be helpless without the idea of freewill and the idea of freewill would be helpless without incongruity."

"It is human to search for the theory of everything and it is superhuman to find it."

"Matter is non-spatial feeling/s and Energy is the inherent capacity of the universe to make matter exist."

"Pure mathematics is a system of 100% precise and 99.99...% necessary propositions. (The term precise means that every term in a proposition is absolutely clarified, and every non-axiomatic proposition is supported on the basis of axiomatic one/s, leaving no doubt, except the 0.00...1% universal doubt, the principle that 'anything may be possible'.)"

"Applied mathematics is a system of propositions constructed by applying some or up to all of the pure mathematical propositions to explain and/or predict unnecessary phenomena. In other words, applied mathematics is a system of 100% precise and 99.99...% unnecessary propositions."

"Peremptoriness is philosophers' devil."

"Necessity is the ethnicity of truth."

"Reality is reason's workshop."

"I am convinced that an electronic machine, no matter how smart and intelligent, being still a mere spatial structure in concept, can neither innovate nor even understand the axiom: 'No spatial structure can be a representation of any feeling'. Such innovation can only be a work of a non-spatial mind, like a human being, and only such innovation, it should be acknowledged, can pave the way for further scientific achievements."

"The more I find life to be a great design, the more I suspect it to be singular in existence; the more I suspect it to be singular, the more I feel it to be specific and personal; the more I feel it to be personal, the more I think of it to be a mere question; And the more I think of it to be a question, the less I understand the questioner."

"Reality is not an illusion; reality is real. The fact is that what science believes to be real is an illusion, and vice versa."

"What 'rebirth' could mean is a possible existence of (non-spatial) states of consciousness, after death, representing (ideally) the same, or (roughly) similar kinds of experiences as being represented in this particular life to which death would be a particular end. It is important to learn that here the concept of soul is not involved and thus the idea of rebirth, losing its fundamental significance, becomes, in theory, a mere virtual or pseudo phenomenon."

"Man is truly born the time he dies."

"The angel within me thrives on the devil within me."

"My existence is such that 'I' do not really exist. At the end of understanding so much I understand that I know nothing. I suffer for being surrounded by intense suffering and yet I'm deeply suspicious if first of all there is indeed any consciousness except me. I strive to find the artist who may have fathered this great universal art but feel myself to be too feeble to accomplish this seemingly unattainable mission. Yet I have every respect for life, and it is this sheer respect that makes me live."

"God is a philosophical black hole – the point where reason breaks down."

"Man's greatest battle is being a true philosopher."

"The meaning of life is 'the ultimate questioner's vanity'."

"In hell, the Devil is God."

"Philosophy is the only excuse God has for his cruelty and vanity."

"The blind cannot see the sun."

"Whenever God looks devilish, I see the philosopher fail."

"The world is solely occupied by a questioner and a philosopher."

"God is a philosophical terrorist – asking a seemingly unanswerable philosophical question to quench his ultimate vanity."

"The world is a philosophical prison and Man is a philosophical prisoner."

"God may not be omnipotent, but he is omniactive."

"Virtue is my asylum."

"The worst of lusts is vanity."

"Ego is vital but not noble."

"God is a questioner; Man is a philosopher."

"I'm the only man; I'm the only philosopher."

"The man that exists is essentially a philosopher."

"God is the ultimate philosophical questioner, the one who asks the logically paradoxical ultimate philosophical question about the nature of his own existence."

"Man is a philosophical answering machine designed by the ultimate philosophical questioner to quench its – the ultimate philosophical questioner's – ultimate vanity."

"Life is a question asked by God about the way he exists."

"The best of humanity is philosophy."

"True love is like religion. It is full of devotion and free of doubt."

"Every noble action is selfish. Some selfish actions are nobler than others. But they are all selfish. And as such there can be no action purely noble anyway. Even the nobility in God's great philosophical intentions is bounded by his vanity."

"The will of man is the will of God."

"If God were to exist for the entire humanity, he would be profoundly vile, as he allows the existence of unfathomable sin, stupidity, madness, and misery for no reason than his own despicable enjoyment. God exists though, not for all humanity, but for a one chosen man – a philosopher – who is bound to answer the greatest philosophical question, the question about the nature of the questioner's existence, which progressively quenches the divine vanity."

"God is the only evil. His vanity made him the devil."

"I speculate that this is the best of all possible worlds, for philosophy is the best of humanity, and this world is the best philosophically."

"The reason for human existence is the ultimate philosophical questioner's vanity."

"In the midst of excitement, grief, joy, and solitude, I remind myself every moment that the sole mission of my life is to find "the ultimate questioner" - that unimaginable who has put me in this madness to answer an unanswerable question."